

Lynette Sutton

---

Lynette Sutton is known as the Girl That Pours™ in Philadelphia with a deliberate commitment to attracting local and diverse talent into the building trades. She is the Managing Partner of Girl Concrete. Girl Concrete, Inc. is a 100% union, minority-owned concrete contractor that specializes in structural and site concrete. Although the business is only 4 years old, Lynette has led it to incredible growth, jumping from $6,900 in gross revenues to $15.7M in executed contracts, to-date. Lynette has 19 years of “boots on the ground” experience in the construction landscape. She is a graduate of Wharton School of Business, Executive Management Program, and an alumni of Johns Hopkins University. She oversees all Girl Concrete projects and ensures that each concrete project is led with a sustainability mindset and built with an “eye” for detail. With a focus on inclusivity, sustainability and quality, Lynette is leading her team to pour foundations and walls that ultimately strengthen Philadelphia’s infrastructure from the ground up. As Girl Concrete continues to forge ahead, the construction industry is witnessing a visionary and dynamic female leader, who is “cementing” herself as a game-changer in concrete.